Test Required, Optional, Flexible Test required' often does not apply to home-schooled and other special categories. 'Test optional' means not required for most categories of students for evaluation for admission but may be required for placement. 'Test flexible' means that alternatives to SAT and ACT are accepted.

Writing Required Yes' means the writing section is required for the test taken (whether SAT or ACT). 'No' means no requirement.

Score Choice Participant A 'Yes' means that the institution does not object to students submitting only the scores of their choice, although may recommend sending all.

SAT Superscoring Yes for same test version indicates that the school superscores across sub-sections from different test dates. A yes for a test optional school means that the policy applies only when students choose to submit scores.

ACT Superscoring We define superscoring as working with highest section scores across multiple test dates, whether or not a new composite is created. Some schools look only at the composite score but some look at section scores in addition to highest composite score.

Subject Tests Indicates whether subject tests are a requirement for admission. Not noted are requirements for placement, honors, or home-schooled students.

Application Deadlines (Dates) Only standard deadlines for first year US applicants are shown; special programs may have different deadlines.

Note Information for universities with multiple campuses refers to flagship campuses unless otherwise noted.

Note When admission requirements differ by program of study, information for liberal arts is shown.
